

Rock Bar

FACT SHEET

OVERVIEW

Located on natural rocks 14 meters above the Indian Ocean at the base of AYANA's towering cliffs, this innovative bar in Bali's most glam sunset and after-dark destination. Open to the elements with nothing to block the fresh sea air and changing colors of the sky, Rock Bar's chic ambience and superstar views merge with the rhythm of the ocean and the funky tunes vibing from the DJ booth elevated above the bar. The minimalist design by Yasuhiro Koichi of Japan's Design Studio SPIN exploits the natural formation and character of the rock on which the bar sits. Koichi's triumphant masterpiece ensures nothing comes between you and the horizon but shimmering ocean waves (and the odd traditional fishing boat, adding another touch of magic to postcard-worthy photos). The bar itself was created by Japanese glass artist Seiki Torige, using thousands of layers of recycled glass canes to produce a shimmering effect accentuated by the sun. Jutting out from the cliff-face, crystallized rocks hundreds of years old add natural glitter to this spectacular venue. Even the descent to the bar is dramatic via an inclinator that traverses the cliff-face, giving you a bird's eye view before you officially arrive to take your seat for the dazzling 'aquatic fireworks', a result of waves breaking on a 100m-long coral reef at high tide. Either side of the main rock extending along the beach, wooden deck areas provide additional viewing points, one of which is accessed via a natural cave.
